

---

Table of contents

|   |           |
|---|-----------|
| Preface  | 7  |
| I Linguistics at the turn of the 21st century: An overview   | 11 |
| I.1 Central dichotomies   |           |
| I.2 Three major research traditions in 20th century linguistics     |           |
| 2.1 Structuralism   |           |
| 2.2 Formalism/Generative linguistics                                |           |
| 2.3 Functionalism   |           |
| I.3 Recent developments in 20th century linguistics                 |           |
| 3.1 Corpus linguistics  |           |
| 3.2 The renewed interest in historical linguistics                  |           |
| Checklist Linguistics   |           |
| Exercises   |           |
| Sources and further reading   |           |
| II Phonetics and phonology: On sounds and sound systems      | 35 |
| II.1 Phonetics  |           |
| 1.1 Transcription   |           |
| 1.2 Speech organs   |           |
| 1.3 Types of sounds   |           |
| II.2 Phonology  |           |
| 2.1 On determining the phoneme inventory: Segmental phonology       |           |
| 2.2 Prosody: Supra-segmental phonology                              |           |
| 2.3 Phonological processes in connected speech                      |           |
| Checklist Phonetics and Phonology                                   |           |
| Exercises   |           |
| Sources and further reading   |           |
| III Morphology: On the structure and formation of words      | 67 |
| III.1 Types of morphemes  |           |
| III.2 Morpho(pho)nology: Interface between morphology and phonology |           |
| III.3 Word-formation processes                                      |           |
| 3.1 Derivation  |           |

- 3.2 Compounding
- 3.3 Conversion
- 3.4 Shortenings

Checklist Morphology

Exercises

Sources and further reading

IV Grammar: The ground plan of English 105

IV.1 Inflectional morphology

IV.2 Syntax: Building blocks and sentence patterns

2.1 Parts of speech

2.2 Phrases and clauses

2.3 Grammatical relations

IV.3 The English verb phrase

3.1 Verb types

3.2 Grammatical categories

Checklist Grammar

Exercises

Sources and further reading

V Contrastive Linguistics: English and German 145

V.1 Contrastive Linguistics

V.2 The most striking grammatical differences between English and German

2.1 Morphology

2.2 Word order

2.3 Form and function

2.4 Further differences in the verb phrase

V.3 Phonological differences

Checklist Contrastive Linguistics

Exercises

Sources and further reading

|             |   |            |
|-------------|---|------------|
| VI   | Semantics: Word and sentence meaning                       | 175 |
| VI.1        | Branches and limits of semantics                                  |            |
| VI.2        | Types and facets of meaning                                       |            |
| VI.3        | Structural semantics: Meaning structures in the vocabulary        |            |
| 3.1         | Lexical fields  |            |
| 3.2         | Sense relations   |            |
| 3.3         | Lexical ambiguity: Polysemy and homonymy                          |            |
| VI.4        | Cognitive semantics: Prototypes and metaphors                     |            |
| 4.1         | Prototypes  |            |
| 4.2         | Metaphors   |            |
|             | Checklist Semantics   |            |
|             | Exercises   |            |
|             | Sources and further reading                                       |            |
| VII  | Pragmatics: The study of meaning in context                | 193 |
| VII.1       | Competing definitions: Perspective or component?                  |            |
| VII.2       | Deixis  |            |
| VII.3       | Speech acts   |            |
| 3.1         | Classification of illocutionary acts                              |            |
| 3.2         | Felicity conditions   |            |
| 3.3         | Indirect speech acts  |            |
| VII.4       | Conversational implicatures                                       |            |
| 4.1         | The original theory by Grice                                      |            |
| 4.2         | Post-Gricean models   |            |
|             | Checklist Pragmatics  |            |
|             | Exercises   |            |
|             | Sources and further reading                                       |            |
| VIII | Sociolinguistics: Regional and social varieties of English | 227 |
| VIII.1      | Different types of varieties                                      |            |
| VIII.2      | British and American English: A comparison                        |            |
| VIII.3      | Regional varieties  |            |
| 3.1         | Traditional and modern dialectology                               |            |
| 3.2         | Syntactic variation in the British Isles                          |            |

---

VIII.4 Social varieties
VIII.5 Feminist linguistics
VIII.6 Sociolinguistics and language change
Checklist Sociolinguistics
Exercises
Sources and further reading

General reference works

245

Answer key to exercises

Index