General Editor: T. H. ASTON, Corpus Christi College, Oxford

Past and Present Publications comprise books similar in character to the articles in the journal Past and Present. Whether the volumes in the series are collections of essays – some previously published, others new studies – or monographs, they encompass a wide variety of scholarly and original works primarily concerned with social, economic and cultural changes, and their causes and consequences. They will appeal to both specialists and non-specialists and will endeavour to communicate the results of historical and allied research in readable and lively form. This new series continues and expands in its aims the volumes previously published elsewhere.

Volumes published by the Cambridge University Press are:

Family and Inheritance: Rural Society in Western Europe 1200–1800, edited by Jack Goody, Joan Thirsk and E. P. Thompson*

French Society and the Revolution, edited by Douglas Johnson

Peasants, Knights and Heretics: Studies in Medieval English Social History, edited by R. H. Hilton*

Towns in Societies: Essays in Economic History and Historical Sociology, edited by Philip Abrams and E. A. Wrigley*

Desolation of a City: Coventry and the Urban Crisis of the Late Middle Ages, Charles Phythian-Adams

Puritanism and Theatre: Thomas Middleton and Opposition Drama under the Early Stuarts, Margot Heinemann

Lords and Peasants in a Changing Society: The Estates of the Bishopric of Worcester, 680–1540, Christopher Dyer

Life, Marriage and Death in a Medieval Parish: Economy, Society and Demography in Halesowen 1270–1400, Zvi Razi

Biology, Medicine and Society 1840–1940, edited by Charles Webster

*Also issued as a paperback

Volumes previously published with Routledge and Kegan Paul are:

Crisis in Europe 1560–1660, edited by Trevor Aston

Studies in Ancient Society, edited by M. I. Finley

The Intellectual Revolution of the Seventeenth Century, edited by Charles Webster

John R. Durant is a Staff Tutor in biology in the Department of Extramural Studies, University College of Swansea. His chief interests are the history and social relations of late-nineteenth- and twentieth-century biology; he is currently engaged in research into the influence of ethology theory on the sciences of man in this period.

Carol Dyhouse teaches social history and education at the University of Sussex. She is particularly interested in the history of women in nineteenth- and twentieth-century England and is currently working on a history of girls' socialization.

Brian Harrison is a Fellow and Tutor in Politics and History at Corpus Christi College, Oxford. Among his publications are Drink and the Victorians (1971) and Separate Spheres. The Opposition to Women's Suffrage in Britain (1978).

Daniel J. Kevles is Professor of History at the California Institute of Technology and the author of The Physicists: The History of a Scientific Community in Modern America (Knopf, 1978). He is currently at work on the history of genetics and eugenics in the United States and Britain.

Donald Mackenzie is Lecturer in Sociology at the University of Edinburgh. He is completing a study of the development of statistical theory in Britain between the 1860s and 1920s.

B. Norton teaches history and social relations of science at Leicester University. He is interested in the roles played by modern psychology in British and American culture.

G. R. Searle is Lecturer in History at the University of East Anglia. His previous publications include The Quest for National Efficiency (1971) and Eugenics and Politics in Britain 1900-1914 (1976). He has recently completed a study of the Radical Right in early twentieth-century Britain. At present he is working on the theme of corruption in the Edwardian political system.

Gillian Sutherland is Fellow, Lecturer and Director of Studies in History at Newnham College, Cambridge. Her publications include Policy-Making in Elementary Education 1870–1895 (1973). She is a member of the editorial board of Social History. The paper published here forms part of a larger study, Ability, Merit and Measurement: Mental Testing and English Education, to go to press in 1981.

Paul Weindling is Research Officer at the Wellcome Unit for the History of Medicine, Oxford. He has contributed to three collaborative volumes on the history of scientific organizations, and is completing a dissertation on Oscar Hertwig. His main research is on the social history of medicine in Imperial Germany.

Preface and Acknowledgements

This volume has its origin in the conference on 'The Roots of Sociobiology', held by the Past and Present Society in conjunction with the British Society for the History of Science on 29 September 1978. The volume comprises revised texts of the four main papers delivered at the conference by Harrison, Mackenzie, Searle and Norton, together with additional contributions by other participants in the conference: Durant, Dyhouse, Kevles, Sutherland and Weindling. The editor is particularly grateful to John Durant and Paul Weindling for preparing full-length contributions at relatively short notice. The brief Introduction is designed to provide a context, without in any way duplicating the contents of the volume.

As might be expected the conference was heavily subscribed and included much lively debate on controversial issues. The organizers were grateful to Professor J. Maynard Smith for representing the biologist position, and to Dr R. M. Young and members of the Radical Science Collective for their contribution and criticisms. Dr W. H. Bynum and Mr G. L'E. Turner from the British Society assisted with the organization of the meeting.

The essays by Kevles and Sutherland are to appear separately in Isis and D. Hamilton and J. V. Smith (eds.), The Meritocratic Intellect: Studies in the History of Educational Research (Aberdeen: Aberdeen University Press, 1980) respectively. The editor and the Past and Present Society would like to thank the editor of The Journal of Social History for permission to reprint the essay by Dyhouse.

The index has been prepared by Penelope M. Gouk.
