

Cambridge University Press

0521022673 - The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words

Christopher Cannon

Frontmatter

More information

The Making of Chaucer's English

The Making of Chaucer's English undertakes a substantial reappraisal of the place Chaucer's English occupies in the history of the English language and the language of English literature. It attacks the widespread presumption that Chaucer invented literary English and argues instead that Chaucer's English is generally traditional. It shows that Chaucer's linguistic innovation was as much performance as fact, but it also traces the linguistic strategies that made (and make) the performance of 'originality' so believable. It includes a valuable history of every word Chaucer uses. The book also interrogates the theory and methodology of historicizing languages so even as it explores how Chaucer's words matter, it also wonders why these particular words have acquired such importance for poets and scholars alike – for 600 years.

DR. CHRISTOPHER CANNON is a Fellow of St Edmund Hall, and Lecturer in English, Oxford University. He is a contributor to the Cambridge History of Medieval Literature, and has published numerous journal articles on Chaucer and his use of language. The Making of Chaucer's English is his first book.

Cambridge University Press
 0521022673 - The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words
 Christopher Cannon
 Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE STUDIES IN MEDIEVAL LITERATURE

General editor

Alastair Minnis, University of York

Editorial board

Patrick Boyde, University of Cambridge

John Burrow, University of Bristol

Rita Copeland, University of Minnesota

Alan Deyermond, University of London

Peter Dronke, University of Cambridge

Simon Gaunt, University of London

Nigel Palmer, University of Oxford

Winthrop Wetherbee, Cornell University

This series of critical books seeks to cover the whole area of literature written in the major medieval languages – the main European vernaculars, and medieval Latin and Greek – during the period c. 1100–1500. Its chief aim is to publish and stimulate fresh scholarship and criticism on medieval literature, special emphasis being placed on understanding major works of poetry, prose, and drama in relation to the contemporary culture and learning which fostered them.

Recent titles in the series

- 32 Patricia E. Grieve 'Floire and Blancheflor' and the European Romance o 521 43152 x
 33 Huw Pryce (ed.) Literacy in Medieval Celtic Societies o 521 57039 5
 34 Mary Carruthers The Craft of Thought: Meditation, Rhetoric, and the Making of Images, 400–1200 o 521 58232 6
 35 Beate Schmolke-Hasselmann The Evolution of Arthurian Romance: The Verse Tradition from Chrétien to Froissart o 521 41153 x
 36 Siân Echard Arthurian Narrative in the Latin tradition o 521 62126 7
 37 Fiona Somerset Clerical Discourse and Lay Audience in Late Medieval England o 521 62154 2
 38 Florence Percival Chaucer's Legendary Good Women o 521 41655 8
 39 Christopher Cannon The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words o 521 59274 7

A complete list of titles in the series can be found at the end of the volume.

Cambridge University Press
0521022673 - The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words
Christopher Cannon
Frontmatter
More information

The Making of Chaucer's English

A Study of Words

CHRISTOPHER CANNON

Cambridge University Press
 0521022673 - The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words
 Christopher Cannon
 Frontmatter
More information

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
 Cambridge, New York, Melbourne, Madrid, Cape Town, Singapore, São Paulo

Cambridge University Press
 The Edinburgh Building, Cambridge CB2 2RU, UK

Published in the United States of America by Cambridge University Press, New York

www.cambridge.org
 Information on this title: www.cambridge.org/9780521592741

© Cambridge University Press 1998

This publication is in copyright. Subject to statutory exception and to the provisions of relevant collective licensing agreements, no reproduction of any part may take place without the written permission of Cambridge University Press.

First published 1998
 Reprinted 2001
 This digitally printed first paperback version 2005

A catalogue record for this publication is available from the British Library

Library of Congress Cataloguing in Publication data
 Cannon, Christopher.

The making of Chaucer's English: a study of words / Christopher Cannon.

p. cm. (Cambridge studies in medieval literature: 39)

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 0 521 59274 7 (hardback)

1. Chaucer, Geoffrey, d. 1400 – Language.

2. English language – Middle English, 1100–1500 – Glossaries, vocabularies, etc.

3. English language – Middle English, 1100–1500 – Lexicology.

4. English language – Middle English, 1100–1500 – Etymology.

5. Rhetoric, Medieval. I. Title. II. Series.

PR1940.C36 1998

821'.1–dc21 97–35262 CIP

ISBN-13 978-0-521-59274-1 hardback

ISBN-10 0-521-59274-7 hardback

ISBN-13 978-0-521-02267-5 paperback

ISBN-10 0-521-02267-3 paperback

Cambridge University Press
0521022673 - The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words
Christopher Cannon
Frontmatter
More information

*For
Joel, Adrienne, Alyssa, and Tae*

Contents

Acknowledgments	page x
Abbreviations	xii
Note on texts and lexical references	xiii
Introduction	I
PART ONE: THE STUDY OF WORDS	7
1 The making of English and the English of Chaucer	9
2 Traditional English	48
3 The development of Chaucer's English	91
4 Invented English	136
5 The myth of origin and the making of Chaucer's English	179
PART TWO: WORDS STUDIED	221
Chaucer's writings	223
Chaucer's words	226
References	417
Index	429

Acknowledgments

One of the chief pleasures of a first book is the opportunity to record long-standing debts publicly. First and foremost, I owe thanks to the remarkable triumvirate of teachers who have guided my study of Middle English and Chaucer. Derek Pearsall bore the brunt of this book, as the first reader of the doctoral thesis that began it, and the reader (and improver) of the most difficult steps of its journey to print. Larry Benson's unstinting generosity with computer versions of Chaucer's language and his constant insight into how that language might best be analyzed made this project possible. Jill Mann introduced me to the study of words, guided my work with a decade of helpful advice, and, then, in a moment of acute need, gave me the words themselves – by lending me her entire MED. At the eleventh hour she also gave my entire manuscript careful and widely improving scrutiny.

To many friends and acquaintances I know that I have seemed to be, for years, a crazed version of Mr. Ramsay, like him, convinced that success in life might be reckoned as a journey from “A to Z,” but, unlike him, benighted enough to think that I might actually get past “Q.” It is in fact only through the kind offices of the editors of the MED and, in particular, of the Editor-in-Chief, Robert Lewis, that I ever got any further than “T.” I owe thanks to all of the fine scholars at work on this dictionary in the summer of 1994 for permitting me to paw through their carefully organized files, and for offering advice on many of the problems I encountered in my research. For their assistance in the archives of Oxford University Press concerning some of the points in chapter 5, I also owe thanks to Peter Foden, Jenny McMorris, Judith Pearsall, and John Simpson.

I could have found no better research assistant than Jessica Brantley

Cambridge University Press

0521022673 - The Making of Chaucer's English: A Study of Words

Christopher Cannon

Frontmatter

More informationAcknowledgments

(for whose assistance I also owe thanks to the Academic Senate of UCLA for the funds which paid her). I know all too well how tiresome studious attention to the data disposed as Part 2 of this book can be, and it must have been still more tiresome to check it so carefully. Readers of this book who find this material at all useful have her to thank for its accuracy – and if it is at all user friendly that is because its first user has been such a good friend.

I owe thanks to a great number of other friends and colleagues, many of whom peaceably endured years of description of my progress on this book and only rewarded that affront with the most kind advice and the most useful readings. Others met some form of this book before they met me, and, although confronted first with its unfinished and less convincing forms, still responded with invaluable generosity. I would like to thank, in particular, Charles Blyth, Jacqueline Brown, Douglas Bruster, John Burrow, Robert Dawidoff, Daniel Donoghue, A. S. G. Edwards, Lianna Farber, Elizabeth Fowler, Simon Gaunt, Scott Gordon, Ralph Hanna III, Sarah Kay, H. A. Kelly, V. A. Kolve, Jeffrey Masten, Anne Middleton, Donka Minkova, Jane Moody, Ad Putter, Elizabeth Scala, James Simpson, David Wallace, Luke Wenger, Barry Windeatt, and Nicolette Zeeman.

Juliet Fleming has been and will be this book's ideal reader.

A Jacob K. Javits Fellowship from the U. S. Department of Education and a Mellon Fellowship in the Humanities gave me time to do the research for this book when I was a graduate student. A Katharine Jex Blake Research Fellowship in Girton College, Cambridge gave me the opportunity, free from teaching responsibilities, to write it, and placed me in an intellectual environment so convivial as to make that extended process a great joy. Most of chapter 5 appeared earlier in article form and is reprinted here, slightly revised, with kind permission from Speculum: A Journal of Medieval Studies 71 (1996): 646–75.

Abbreviations

- EETS OS Early English Text Society, Original Series
- EETS ES Early English Text Society, Extra Series
- MWME* A Manual of the Writings in Middle English, ed. J. B. Severs and Albert E. Hartung, 9 vols., New Haven, CT: Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences, 1967– (in progress).
- MED* The Middle English Dictionary, Hans Kurath et al. (eds.), Ann Arbor: University of Michigan, 1954–.
- OED* The Oxford English Dictionary, James H. Murray, et al. (eds.), Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1933.
- OED2* The Oxford English Dictionary, J. A. Simpson and E. S. C. Weiner (eds.), 2nd edn, 20 vols., Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1989.

Abbreviations for Chaucer's works in all tables in Part 1 of this book conform to the system used in "Chaucer's writings" in Part 2 (see pp. 223–6 below).

Note on texts and lexical references

All quotations from the works of Chaucer are taken from the Riverside Chaucer, Larry D. Benson (ed.), 3rd edn, Boston, MA: Houghton Mifflin, 1987. Quotations from the Canterbury Tales are cited by fragment as well as line number.

When discussing particular words in Part 1 of this book, I am often relying heavily on information provided in the lexical index that comprises Part 2. Where such reference is straightforward I have simply referred to the word by the headword under which the relevant information is provided in Part 2. In such cases, this headword is the substantiating reference and no further reference is given in my text or notes.