The Centre for International Studies at the London School of Economics and Political Science was established in 1967 with the aid of a grant from the Ford Foundation. Its aim is to promote research and advanced training on a multi-disciplinary basis in the general field of international studies.

To this end the Centre sponsors research projects and seminars and endeavours to secure the publication of manuscripts arising out of them.

Whilst the Editorial Board accepts responsibility for recommending the inclusion of a volume in the series, the author is alone responsible for views and opinions expressed.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I wish to thank the following for permission to make use of archival materials under their jurisdiction: the University Library, the University of Birmingham (the papers of Sir Austen Chamberlain); the British Library, the British Museum (the papers of the first Earl Balfour, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, Viscount D'Abernon of Esher, Sir Charles Scott, and Sir Evelyn Wrench); the University Library, Cambridge University (the papers of the first Earl Baldwin of Bewdley); the Master, Fellows, and Scholars of Churchill College, Cambridge (the papers of the first Baron Hankey); the present Lord Howard of Penrith (the papers of the first Baron Howard of Penrith); the present Lord Keyes (the papers of Admiral of the Fleet, Lord Keyes); the National Maritime Museum, Greenwich (the papers of Admiral Sir Barry Domvile and Admiral Sir Howard Kelly); the Controller of H.M. Stationery Office (the archives of the Admiralty, the Cabinet, and the Foreign Office, as well as the papers of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the first Baron Cushendun, and J. Ramsay MacDonald); Mr A. J. P. Taylor and the Beaverbrook Foundation, London, along with the Clerk of the Records, House of Lords Records Office (the papers of the first Baron Beaverbrook and the first Earl Lloyd-George of Dwyfor); and The Times Newspaper Limited (the papers of Wilmot Lewis).

For their help and assistance at various stages, I would like to thank the staffs of the above-mentioned archives, as well as those of: the Government Publications Reading Room, the University of Alberta, Edmonton; the Roskill Archives, Churchill College, Cambridge; the Cumbria County Record Office, Carlisle; the Public Record Office, London; and The Times Archives, London.

A reference must always be made to those who provide funding for research projects. I would like to thank my parents for their generosity in this respect; without their unreserved support I could not have studied abroad for three years. I would also like to thank the Isobel Thornley Bequest for its generosity.

A number of scholars kindly discussed aspects of this study with me. I would like to mention Professor James Barrington, Dr Kathleen Burk, Professor Grant Davy, Dr Michael Dockrill, Professor Douglas Johnson, the late Captain Stephen Roskill, and Dr Zara Steiner. My colleague, Dr David Dinwoodie, has been decidedly generous in his comments. I also appreciate the kindness of the present Lord Howard of Penrith who offered me the hospitality of his home and discussed his father's embassy with me. Two people deserve special thanks: Professor Ian Nish, the past chairman of the Centre for International Studies, who suggested that I consider submitting my manuscript to the CIS; and Dr Keith Neilson, my friend since our under-graduate days at the University of Alberta and, later, as doctoral students in England, who knows how much I owe him. I must also acknowledge my immeasurable debt to Professor D. C. Watt who, as my doctoral supervisor and then my friend, provided positive criticism and encouragement to my work. This book reflects in part his confidence in me.

Finally I would like to thank Professor Michael Leifer, chairman of the CIS, Mrs Elizabeth Wetton of Cambridge University Press, and Bonnie Kyle, who read various drafts for errors. The Hurst family – Paul, Lynn, Kati, and Sally – were most helpful by letting me ‘bunk in’, sometimes for months, when I was staying in London. Most important, I would like to thank my wife, Cheryl, for the support she gave me when we lived in England and when I wrote this manuscript back in Canada.
