ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This book is based on part of my doctoral thesis (Indian politics, 1888-1908, Cambridge, 1967) and on an essay (Maharashtrian politics and Indian nationalism, 1880-1920) which was awarded the Thirlwall Prize and Seeley Medal in 1969. The present work has taken a long time to write and over the years I have incurred many obligations.

I am grateful to the Department of Education and Science for a Hayter Research Studentship that enabled me to work in India during 1965 and 1966. Since then, the University of Cambridge, the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, the Faculty Board of Oriental Studies, the Managers of the Smuts Memorial Fund, and the Social Science Research Council's Modern Indian History Project, have all contributed generously towards the costs of my research. In particular, I was able to make a second visit to India in 1970.

I wish to record the kind assistance of the librarians and staff at the India Office Library, the British Museum, the National Archives of India, the Nehru Memorial Museum and Library, the Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics, the Office of the Maharashtra State Committee for a History of the Freedom Movement in India, and Cambridge University Library.

I am grateful to the Government of India, the Government of Maharashtra, the Servants of India Society, Shri M. G. Chitnavis, Shri V. R. Karandikar, the Trustees of the Dadabhai Naoroji Memorial Trust, Professor R. P. Patwardhan, the Kesari-Mahratta Trust and Shri J. S. Tilak, Dr V. R. Karandikar of the Deccan Education Society, Shri S. R. Venkataraman of the Servants of India Society at Madras, and the President of the Theosophical Society, Shri N. Sri Ram, for permission to consult records and private papers in their possession.

While in India I was grateful for the advice and kindness of many people, particularly Shri D. V. Ambekar, Shri V. C. Joshi, Miss D. G. Keswani, Professor N. R. Phatak, Shri B. N. Phatak, Shri Sourin Roy, Shri B. Shiva Rao and Shri M. V. Sovani.

Acknowledgements

I should like to thank those who examined my Ph.D. thesis, and those who invited me to read seminar papers at the universities of Chicago, Oxford and Sussex, for their helpful comments on earlier formulations of the arguments put forward in this book; and I am especially grateful to Miss L. Breglia who has laboured to save me from both infelicities of style and inexactitude of expression.

My greatest debt, however, is to Anil Seal and to my other colleagues in Cambridge. But for their researches and their stimulating criticisms this book might have been published much earlier, although it would have been the poorer for that; but for their friendship and their insistence it might never have been published at all.
