

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
1. The Decolonisation of a “Murder Machine”: Education and the Catholic Church in Post-Treaty Ireland	15
1.1. Two Failed Educational Ambitions: The English National System versus St Enda’s Revivalism	19
1.2. Catholic Education in Ireland and the Influences of European Teaching Orders	28
1.3. Catholic-Ruled Education in Post-Treaty Ireland: The Reproduction of the English Educational Machinery	34
2. Education and the Formation of the Irish Canon in the Mid-Twentieth Century: Curriculum and Textbooks for Primary and Secondary Schools	47
2.1. The Formation of the Literary Canon and the Making of Irish National Curricula	50
2.2. Inclusions and Exclusions in English and History Syllabi	58
2.3. Formation of a National Literary Canon and Pedagogies for State Examinations	68
2.4. Irish Textbooks in Progress and the Remaking of Anglo-Irishness	76
3. Politics, Literary Canon and Historiography at Dublin’s Universities: The Examination Papers of TCD and UCD in the 1930s as Models	85
3.1. Some Common Features in the Departmental Administrations of TCD and UCD	88
3.2. De-Anglicisation within Trinity College Dublin	94
3.3. Moves Towards Decolonisation within University College Dublin	101
3.4. (De)Colonising Examination Papers: Trinity College Dublin	107
3.5. (De)Colonising Examination Papers: University College Dublin	117
4. Practices of the Theory of Canon: Irish Anthologies Revisited	129
4.1. Some Consequences of Canon Formation in Ireland	129

4.2. Inventing Irish Anthologies	137
4.3. Short Story Anthologies in Irish Literary Politics	143
5. Historiography and the Motif of the Rising in Some Irish Short Stories and Novels	157
5.1. Varying Sentiments in Historical Representations	161
5.2. Fictional History: The Decentralisation of Historical Narratives in Some Short Stories	166
5.3. The Lockup Strike and James Plunkett's Strumpet City (1969)	169
5.4. The Easter Rising and Iris Murdoch's The Red and the Green (1965)	173
5.5. The Anglo-Irish War and J.G. Farrell's Troubles (1970)	177
6. The Awakening of Irish Private Conscience: Mary Lavin, Her Texts, and the Canon	185
6.1. Repositioning Mary Lavin	189
6.2. Stories in Perspective	196
6.3. Class and Patriarchy in The House in Clewe Street (1945)	204
7. Divinity and Humanity: The Heterodox Writings of Kate O'Brien	213
7.1. The Land of Spices (1941): Irish Nationalism, Homosexuality, and Private Conscience	215
7.2. Mary Lavelle (1936): Forbidden Desires versus Catholic Teaching	223
7.3. As Music and Splendour (1958): Leading towards Lesbian Liberation	227
7.4. Pray for the Wanderer (1938): An Irish Artist's Protest	232
7.5. Kate O'Brien: A Cultural and Literary Critic ahead of Her Time	238
Conclusion	247
Bibliography	253
Textbooks and Anthologies	262
Examination Papers of Trinity College, Dublin	264
Examination Papers of University College, Dublin	264