

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREFACE.....	9
1. Introduction.....	15
1.1 The Economic and Historical Framework.....	15
1.2 Seven Hypotheses.....	19
1.3 State of Research.....	24
1.4 Organization of the Argument.....	32
 PART I: SCOTTISH FOREIGN TRADE, 1700–1760.....	 37
2. The Institutional Superstructure: Theory and Practice of the English Customs System in Scottish Ports, 1707–1760/83.....	 37
2.1 The Introduction of the English Customs System in Scotland in 1707.....	 37
2.1.1 Mayday.....	37
2.1.2 The Change in the Level of Taxation from the Old Scottish to the English Customs System, 1707.....	 42
2.1.2.1 A New System Rising.....	42
2.1.2.2 Quantifying the Change.....	46
2.1.3 Subsequent Changes in the Level of Taxation (Customs).....	49
2.2 The Effects of the Taxation Regime on the Profitability of Foreign Trade: Did the English Customs System Co-determine the Scottish Trade Pattern?.....	 54
2.2.1 The Legal Trades (i): Effective Tax Rates.....	55
2.2.2 The Legal Trades (ii): The Draw-back System.....	57
2.2.3 The Legal Trades (iii): Bonded Customs Duties.....	59
2.2.4 Illegal Activity.....	62
Appendix to Chapter 2–1: Customs Duties Charged in Scotland under the British System 1707–1770.....	 66
Appendix to Chapter 2–2: Scottish Outports and Customs Precincts, 1707–1760.....	 84
 3. The Quantitative Sources used in the Analysis of Overseas Trade Fluctuations.....	 91
3.1 General Remarks.....	91
3.2 The Port Books and other Outport Materials.....	93
3.2.1 The Practice of Taxation.....	93
3.2.2 Accounts Produced and Kept in the Outports.....	96
3.2.3 The History of the Scottish Port Books in the Eighteenth Century.....	 99
3.2.4 Design.....	100
3.2.5 Declarations of the Port(s) of Origin / Destination.....	101

3.2.6 Firm's Records vs. Customs Accounts: How Useful are Port Books in Establishing Firm Size and Business Scale in the Tobacco Trades?	102
3.2.7 Cargoes Not Covered in the Customs Accounts	105
3.2.7.1 Smuggling	105
3.2.7.2 General Problems in the Declarations of Material Identity	107
3.2.7.3 Post-Entries	108
3.2.7.4 Port Books: The "Bottom Line"	109
3.3 Inspector General's Ledgers of Imports and Exports ("TNA, CUSTOMS 14")	110
3.3.1 General Remarks	110
3.3.2 History of the Office	112
3.3.3 Design	113
3.3.4 The Link between the Port Books and the Ledgers of Imports and Exports – A Case Study for 1755	115
3.3.4.1 The Problem	115
3.3.4.2 Cargo Into / Ex Warehouse	116
3.3.4.3 Post-entries	119
3.3.4.4 Further Elusive Evidence on Principles of Aggregation	120
3.3.4.5 Commodities obviously excluded from the Inspector General's Ledgers	121
3.3.4.6 The Country Classifications Applied in the Ledgers of Imports and Exports	123
3.3.5 The Scottish System of Valuations: General Characteristics and Problems	126
3.4 Scottish Board of Customs General Accounts (1707–1760)	128
4. Scottish Foreign Trade during the First Half of the Eighteenth Century	133
4.1 The Structure of the Volume of Trade (I): Commodities	133
4.1.1 The Composition of the Scottish Volume of Trade "At the Eve of Union"	133
4.1.1.1 Exports to England	135
4.1.1.2 Imports from England and Elsewhere	139
4.2 The Structure of the Volume of Trade (II): Distribution by Ports	140
4.3 Fluctuations and Trends in Scotland's Overseas Trades, 1707–1742/1755	145
4.3.1 General Fluctuations, Trends and Structure, 1700–1760	145
4.3.2 The Recorded Trades	147
4.3.2.1 Tobacco and other Colonial Goods	147
4.3.2.1.1 Trends and Cycles in the Tobacco Trades	148
4.3.2.1.2 Concentration in the Tobacco Trades	153
4.3.2.1.3 Re-exports of Colonial Goods to the Baltic According to the Sound Toll Registers	157
4.3.2.2 Trade in Luxury Goods: The Example of the Wine Trades	159
4.3.2.3 Grain	160

4.3.2.3.1 General Remarks.....	160
4.3.2.3.2 Trends and Cycles in the Grain Trade.....	163
4.3.2.4 The Cyclical Pattern in the Grain Trades: Tracing the Scottish Harvest Cycle, 1708–1760 (and beyond).....	168
4.3.3 Unrecorded Trades (I): Trade with England 1707–1760.....	172
4.3.4 Unrecorded Trades (II): The Scottish Tea Trades, 1700–1760.....	175
5. The Scottish Pattern of Trade towards the End of the Period (1755/59).....	187
5.1 The Composition of the Scottish Trade Volume.....	188
5.1.1 Exports.....	188
5.1.1.1 Domestic Exports.....	188
5.1.1.2 Re-exports.....	192
5.1.2 Imports.....	193
5.2 The Distribution of the Scottish Trade Volume (I): Foreign Countries and Ports.....	194
5.2.1 The Overseas Trades.....	194
5.2.1.1 Exports Overseas.....	195
5.2.1.2 Re-exports Overseas.....	195
5.2.1.3 Imports from Overseas.....	195
5.2.1.4 Foreign Ports.....	197
5.2.2 Trade with England, c. 1760.....	197
5.3 The Distribution of the Scottish Trade Volume (II): Scottish Regions and Ports, 1754–5.....	200
5.3.1 Regions.....	201
5.3.2 Glasgow.....	202
5.3.3 Leith.....	202
6. Trade and Economic Growth, 1700–1760.....	205
6.1 The Problem.....	207
6.2 Scale and Scope, or: Did Size Matter?.....	209
6.3 Possible Trends in Economic Activity, 1700–1760.....	216
6.4 Trade and the Economy: The European Perspective.....	223
6.5 Explaining the Scottish Trade Pattern, 1700–1760.....	227
PART II: SCOTTISH-GERMAN TRADE, 1700–1770:
A CASE STUDY.....	233
7. Scottish Trade with Germany, 1700–1760/70: The Macro-Picture.....	233
7.1. The Embeddedness of Early Modern Scottish-German Trade.....	233
7.2 The General Trends and Patterns in the Commodity Trades.....	235
7.3 Particular Commodities Exported to and Imported from Germany.....	237
7.3.1 Cod & Ling.....	237
7.3.2 Salt.....	239
7.3.3 Rice.....	253
7.3.4 Tobacco.....	258

7.3.5 Narrow German Linens.....	261
8. The “Micro-Approach” or Individual Merchants: Finance and Organization of the Commodity Trades.....	267
8.1 “Multilateralism”: Model and Reality.....	267
8.2 BUCHANAN & SIMSON (GLASGOW) – A Very Large Firm.....	274
8.2.1 General Remarks.....	274
8.2.2 Frederick Schröder (Bremen).....	277
8.2.3 Hamburg.....	279
8.3 THOMAS DOUGLAS & CO (Montrose) – A Large Firm.....	284
8.4 A Smaller Merchant – JOHN CARMICHAEL (Edinburgh).....	291
8.4.1 General Remarks.....	291
8.4.2 The Problem of Trust in the (Intra-European) Consignment Trades.....	292
9. Conclusion: The Rise of a Warehouse Economy, 1700–1760.....	301
APPENDIX.....	307
BIBLIOGRAPHY.....	367