

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

From two different parts of the world, Krakow, Poland and Puebla, Mexico come to us the studies brought together in this volume. All have the same focus: truth. Some of them were presented at our Third International Congress on Life, which had the theme “Phenomenology/Philosophy and the Sciences of Life.” This conference took place at the Jagiellonian University, Krakow, September 14–16, 1999 under the auspices of Professor Dr. Alexander Koj and Dean Rydzewski and the Institute of Philosophy at the University, to all of whom we owe our thanks. In two previous volumes of papers from this conference we expressed our thanks to the local organizing committee: Drs. T. Czarnik, I. Fiut, P. Mroz, Z. Zalewski, L. Pyra, and J. Handerek. The authors who contributed to that conference will find themselves most appropriately placed in the present volume dedicated to the theme of truth.

It was at the Universidad Benemérita of Puebla, Mexico that our conference on the theme of “Truth” took place, on May 20–21, 2000. We express our thanks to the Autonomous Benemérita University for its hospitality. We enormously enjoyed the vivacity of the Mexican spirit.

As usual, thanks go to Jeff Hurlburt and Louis Houthakker for helping with the preparation of the program as well as for the registration on site.
